Front Line Environmental Groups Eligible for Grants to Protect Environmental and Cultural Treasures in NJ Highlands

BOONTON, N.J. – Front line citizen groups fighting to protect water and other environmental resources or to preserve cultural and historic treasures in northern New Jersey's Highlands Region can get help from grants up to $5000 through the New Jersey Highlands Coalition's 2021 Small Grants Program.

Applications must be received by June 22, 2021. Grants will be presented on October 13 at the N.J. Highlands Coalition's 2021 Annual Meeting.

"Our Small Grants Program is one of the unique strengths of the Highlands Coalition," said Julia Somers, Executive Director. "We engage at the statewide and regionwide levels, but most of our members are from local grassroots groups who are in touch with breaking issues in their communities. They're our early warning system. In addition to giving them financial assistance that primes the pump for their own fund-raising, we also offer counseling based on our hard-won experience."

Historic projects include "brick-and-mortar" projects for specific historic sites or districts. This is the fifteenth year of the Coalition's Small Grants Program for environmental projects and the seventh year for projects that protect cultural, historic, and archaeological resources in the Highlands, an important part of the Highlands Regional Master Plan.

Grassroots organizations are defined as non-governmental organizations with a total annual operating budget of less than $200,000. It is not necessary that the organization be incorporated. To be eligible to apply for a grant, an organization must become a member of the Coalition, but dues are as low as $20 a year. Grants from the Highlands Coalition cannot be used for political purposes.

A grassroots group may apply for one or more grants, either environmental, cultural or components of both. But the total amount requested by any one organization cannot exceed $5000.

Grant applications should meet at least one of the following five criteria, with the items at the top getting more weight than those below:

1. Projects that focus on developing a stronger Highlands Regional Master Plan, and/or implementation of the Regional Master Plan. For example, projects that identify, map, or verify mapped Highlands natural or cultural resources or monitor the implementation of RMP standards at the local level; projects that advocate for and result in municipal conformance with the RMP;
2. Projects that would establish a precedent advancing strong environmental or cultural protection in the Highlands. For example, hiring a consultant to help achieve the most environmentally protective decision by NJDEP, the Highlands Council, the Office of Planning Advocacy/State Planning Commission, the NJ Department of Agriculture on a Highlands matter, or for meeting local affordable housing needs;
3. Projects that may not help set a precedent, but would assist an organization to fight against a development in the Highlands Region – such as residential, commercial, agribusiness projects, etc. – that seriously threatens or damages natural or cultural resources in the Region;
4. Projects that support capacity building of Highlands Region grassroots organizations, for example, a membership mailing, a strategic planning exercise, a workshop, conference or public educational event, etc.;
5. Projects that educate about Highlands water and resources, and/or increase public awareness of the use and conservation of Highlands water.

Applicants are advised to view the full guidelines for the program on the Coalition's website, particularly for cultural and historic grant components which have very detailed requirements.
